FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

FATHER-DAUGHTER DYNAMIC IS THE KEY TO GROWING PERRYMAN CONSTRUCTION TO THE TOP LEVEL

(Philadelphia, PA) Perryman Construction counts premier organizations like Subaru of America, Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Convention Center and the Democratic National Convention among its clients. However today's enviable client roster is a long way from the company's humble beginnings in 1954 in Evergreen, Alabama. The key to Perryman's growth and success is the result of a unique father-daughter dynamic that benefits from their disparate skills synergized within an environment of respect.

Father, Angelo Perryman, is President of Perryman Construction. Daughter, Angelina Perryman, is Vice President of Administration. Angelo evolved the company by moving its headquarters to Philadelphia and expanding upon the original services provided by his father and company founder, Jimmie Lee Perryman, by adding industrial, pharmaceutical, energy, historic restoration, and commercial sectors to the Perryman portfolio of over 1000 projects. Third generation Angelina Perryman not only manages contracts, risk avoidance, human resources, technology, she is also involved in next generation strategic and corporate planning. Together, they run one of the larger and fastest growing construction companies in the region.

Said Angelina Perryman, "I've pretty much grown up in the construction business so it was natural that I made this my career. Although there is a lot of buzz about how Millennials and Baby Boomers don't mesh, we do and enjoy working together. Angelo's personality is bigger than life and everybody knows him so he is great at being the face of our company, but my skills in business administration and management put our company on solid ground, poised for growth in the future. Our distinct personalities, interests and management styles work well together because we complement each other operating in an environment of trust and respect.”

Says Angelo, “I am very fortunate to work with my daughter every day and to have confidence in our company succeeding through the next generation and beyond. That gives clients confidence in Perryman Construction’s professionalism and dependability over the long term, which is a powerful advantage in the construction world.”
